MARSHAL FURBEE DISCHARGED

But Officers Gately and Fisher put Under Bond to Answer to Charges of Interfering With a Deputy Marshal - Prosecution Conducted by Assistant District Attorney Showalter-More Lenient Than Pre

The hearing of the cases against Marshai George Furbee and Officers Thomas Gately and George Fisher, of Benwood, who were charged with interfering with United States deputy marshais in the discharge of their duties during the late street car strike, was conducted by Commissioner George E. Boyd, of the United States court, in his office in the federal building yesterday, and resulted in Marshal Furbee being discharged and Officers Gately and Fisher being held for the next term of Bond in each instance was fix court. ed at $300, Marshall Furbee being the Assistant District Attorney E. M. Showalter, of Fairmont, appeared for the government, and Colonel George B. Caldwell represented the three defendants. The hearing began at 10:30 a. m. and was concluded at 3:45 p. m. The feeling evident in cases of violations of the injunction tried during the strike was absent, and a spirit of leniency was manifested in the prosecution which healed the breach that has existed be-tween the federal authorities and the municipal authorities of Benwood. At the conclusion of the cases the Ben wood officers and the deputies in the court room shook hands and chatted pleasantly over the exciting experiences of last spring, and all traces of friction were buried like the proverbial hatchet.

The deputies present included Regu-lar Deputies Randolph, Stout, Law and Jackson, and Specials Drummond, Kester and Wick. The first case heard was that which charged Officer Gately and Officer Fisher with illegally ar resting Deputy Kester, who shot at William McFarland when the latter escaped from the deputy's grasp. plea of the defense in Gately's case was that Kester had committed a felony, which was later upheld by Justice Riddle, who committe? Kester to fall the grand jury. The government held that the officer had no right to arrest a United States officer who was in the performance of his duty.

An alibi was set up in Fisher's be half, it being maintained that he didn't assist Gately in the arrest and that he had gone home an hour previously. In support of this claim, Officer Fisher support of this claim, and his wife testified that he was home at 10:30 p. m., while the arrest was executed an hour later. Nelli Quinn, of Benwood, testified to seeing Fisher enter his home as alleged. Deputies Kester and Drummond were positive that Fisher was the man.

Attorney Showalter admitted doubt in Fisher's case. He said it was not the government's policy to prosecute worthless cases and incur expense without justification. He recommend ed that the commissioner take cognizance of the conflicting testimony. Commissioner Boyd held that while the preponderance of evidence was on Fisher's side, yet it was not so direct. He therefore held the officers for the next term of court in Wheeling, which

Deputy Wilton Randolph was the principal witness against Marshal Furbee, and he detailed the events leading up to the arrest of Charles Holdermann, in North Benwood, and of the prisoner escaping from the wagon driven by Deputies Stout and Wick. The latter was put on the stand and said that Furbee placed them under arrest after the prisoner escaped. Marshal Furbee was then called and be told a lucid story of the arrest. He was called to the scene by Louis Hoidermann and others who asserted that Stout and Wick had driven off Holdermann's horse, and their arrets was demanded. With some marshal informed the deputies they, were under arrest, and in response to Wick's request to "get us out of this crowd," he walked them down the street some distance and then speed. He used no handcuffs, nor held them in any way, and after they halted and d him where their prisoner was, Furbee then replied that he didn't know that they had had any one under arrest. At this juncture, a car with Deputy Randolph on board came along and the marshal made no resistance to the deputies getting on the car. Deputy Randolph had said to him:

"Don't you know you have no business putting these men under arrest?" Marshal Furbee replied: "I think I have if they violate the law. When Marshal Furbee testified to this, Attorney Showalter interposed with the remark that a deputy couldn't circumstances be arrested under any circumst while in the discharge of his duty.

The remainder of the marshal's testimony was with relation to his having no intention of interfering with the deputies. He said he had had a doubt as to whether these deputies were genuine, since a man posing as one and wearing their badge had been arrested in Benwood for drunkenness and given ninety days in jail by Mayor Shepard, 'I wish I had discovered that man, remarked Deputy Randolph. Attorney Showalter said the federal authorities ould be pleased to learn the hame of the impostor, who was liable to nalty for his imposition. The mar shal was unable to recall the man's

ALTHOUGH A SMALL CROWD

Was in Attendance the Day's Exer cises Were Enjoyed to a High Degree-The Morning Sermon was by Rev. John Beddow, of Cameron Dr. Lambert's Address in the Evening was a Scholarly and Eloquent

Yesterday at the Wheeling district camp meeting the early morning service was conducted as usual by Dr. J. Hill. Although the number small, yet it was a feast to those in attendance. Father Hill is an earnest expounder of the Bible and he is doing much good in these morning services. At 10:30 Rev. John Beddow, of Cam eron, preached one of the very best sermons thus far during the meeting, from the words: "So David preached over the Philistine with a sling and a stone; but there was no sword in the hand of David." He said in part somewhat as follows: The Bible story of the giant killer is worthy to be taught by all parents to their children. It would be much more profitable than the story of "Jack, Giant Killer." By the relation of this and other Bible stories, a love for the Bible and its teachings could be created in the mind of the child, that could not be done in any other way. We learn from this story that God's people had enemies in those days, among whom were the Philistines. There were giants in those days. Is it true that we are losing in physical strength, as to-day giants are the exception? Then it seems, there were many. David was sent by his father to see how the boys, his brothers fared, for they were soldiers in the army of Israel. The fare was very homely -consisting of parched corn, barley loaves and cheeses, according to the Bible account, the latter being what we call "smell kase" or cottage cheese.

Our boys when they go to war to-day must have mince pie, jellies, canned goods and all the delicacies of the sea-son. The preacher here felicitously remarked that the veterans of 1861-65 could and did fight nobly on black coffee, beans, hard-tack and flitch. At this quite a laugh was caused in the entire audience. The subject of the dis-course was David's three victories. First, over self in that he did not become offended at the chidings of his brothers. Second, over the prevailing customs. It was customary to fight giants clad in armor, but Saul's armor would not fit David, and so he went forth to meet the giant with a sling and a stone. Third, the victory over the giant-so we can gain victories in life's battles. If we go manfully forward and win a victory it will enable us to win the next one much easier-"each victory will help us some other to win"-every one present was much pleased with the sermon and gave the very closest attention from first to last. At 2:30 the young people's meeting was conducted by Mrs. Hill, and Dr. Yocum gave a very instructive talk. The young people and children who together consist almost entirely of girls. Where are the boys? A song and prayer service was conducted in the evening by Rev. Starkey, who also gave a very affecting talk relating several very touching incidents. Dr. Lambest preached from the words: For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, who for your sakes became poor that you, through his poverty, might become rich." He spoke in part as follows: To understand the import of these words we must have all the assistance of Divine grace. Christ at one time on the Mount of Trans-Christ at figuration showed three of his follow ers much of what is to follow this life. The natural man cannot receive the things of the spirit. By faith we receive them. By faith we can enter into the holy of holies, and commune God. This earth is not the abiding place of the Child of God. By faith he soars aloft until he reaches even to the throne of God, and sees things that it is not lawful for the natural eye to gaze Thrist was rich. He was equal with the Father. He is God, the Son. He is equal, in power and glory, with the Father. He then is the creator of all things. He then is the owner of all Then he is rich, in power, as things. the owner of all things. He is rich in wisdom, rich in glory. But it is idie to attempt to paint the greatness the richness and the grandeur that he had in the bosom of the Father.

Yet he left all this greatness, "for our sakes he became poor." Why did he leave all this greatness and grandeur and drink to its dregs the cup of woe? In order that he 'For our sakes." might give back to us that inheritance we had so ruthlessly thrust away, and which we could not regain. But was which we could not regain. But there no other way to bring us back to our lost inheritance? No other way.

The speaker in his inimitable style, then showed how we became rich through his poverty, his humiliation and his death, we became rich. How we were lifted up from the lowest depths into which sin had plunged us, the the signifus light of the gospel and depths into which sin had plunged us, into the glorious light of the gospel and made joint heirs with him to an inheritance that never fades away. Dr. Lambert leaves the camp to-night, taking with him the well wishes of all. He is a preacher of great power. After the sermon an altar service was held for a short time and songs and shouts resounded on all sides. The services of to-day are as follows:

DECISION

Regarding the Customs Duty on a Proprietary Sauce Brought Here in an Unfinished State.

An order was filed in the United States district court on August 4 discontiuling, by consent of both parties, the suit of the United States against John Duncan's Sons. This simple incident terminated a remarkable episode in the administration of the customs laws.

About sixty years ago this firm be-came the American agents for the firm of Lea & Perrins, of Worcester. Eng-land, manufacturers of the well-known proprietary preparation called Worces-tershire sauce.

About twenty-two years ago a change of practice was begun by Lea & Perrins and John Duncan's Sons, by which, instead of sending over here the sauce finished, bottled, labeled and ready for use, it was sent over in a partly manufactured condition in casks, and the Messrs. Duncan finished the sauce here according to a formula furnished them by the English house, and bottled and put it up for sale. This course had certain obvious advantages. It saved the firms from paying duty on bottles, labels, straw and finishing expenses, and avoided breakage. The article which was brought over was an incomplete material for the sauce, and was, of course, of no use to anybody who was not acquainted with the formula for finishing it. It was never furnished by Lea & Perrins to anybody but the Duncans, and consigned only to them. It was, therefore, one of the class of merchandise for which our tariff law provides that in determining the valuation upon which to assess duty the government officers shall ascertain the cost of production and make suitable addition to represent the manufacturers' profit.

Lea & Perrins bad furnished the certain the cost of production and make suitable addition to represent the manufacturers, profit.

Lea & Perrins had furnished the United States consul with a statement of their cost of production, giving as much detail as was consistent with the inviolability of their proprietary secret. A suit was brought against the importers. They defended it, putting in an answer denying that the goods had been undervalued, and alleging good faith on their part. The attorney general directed the discontinuance of the suit on the Messrs. Duncan filing an affidavit similar to the 'declaration made by Lea & Perrins, on the other side, that the involces in question had fully covered the market value of the importations. The suit was discontinued without costs, without payment of one dollar by the Messrs. Duncan, and upon the motion of the government's officers themselves.

Lea & Perrins' Worcestershire sauce is apparently more popular than ever, and tie difficult for the manufacturers.
